FATAL NEW YORK FIRE

One Woman Dead and a Number of Persons In Hospital.

MANY OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Owing to the Snow Piled In Front of the Burning Building, Firemen Had Difficulty In Fighting Fire and Rescuing Inmates.

New York, Feb. 8.—One woman is dead and several persons are in the hospital suffering from injuries as the result of a fire which, early Friday, destroyed the five-story brick apartment building at the northwest corner of Columbus avenue and Seventieth street.

The fire is supposed to have started in the drawing room of the domestic laundry in the basement and owing to the lack of water pressure, spread with such rapidity that the occupants had little opportunity to reach the street.

Margaret Mandon, 22 years of age, fell from the fifth floor and was fatally injured. She had been standing on the fire escape waiting for the arrival of the firemen, when she slipped from the icy grating and fell to the pavement. She was removed to the hotel Walton across the street where she died a few moments later.

Owing to the snow piled in front of the building, the firemen had great difficulty in raising ladders to take down the tenants. As a result of this delay many were overcome by smoke and cold and were carried to the hotel Walton where they were attended by doctors and cared for by the hotel management. The building was damaged to the extent of $85,000.

"SHOE DAY" IN NEW YORK.

Institution Established by "Big Tim" Murphy, of that City.

New York, Feb. 8.—Thursday was "shoe day" on the Bowery, and 5,000 men are now tramping the Bowery sidewalks wearing new shoes and new woolen socks.

"Shoe day" is an institution and was established by Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, known to his constituents and New York generally as "Big Tim."

Every year Sullivan gives away shoes to every man of his district who needs them, and Thursday more than 5,000 were in line long before the doors of the club rooms were opened for the distribution. The annual distribution of shoes is Sullivan's pet charity, for, he says, "a man can march to glory in a pair of new shoes and dry socks."

It is admirably located, being only about twelve minutes' walk from the business center of Chicago, and is reached by electric surface cars.

Sales for the week were a little in excess of the net receipts, and shipments were largely to Northern mills. Quotations are ½c lower for fine, and inside quotations are 1c lower for fancy Georgias and extra choice Floridas.

Eighteenth Wedding Anniversary.

Mrs. L. B. Fletcher, ever on the alert for something pleasant for her friends, surprised Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bailey last night with an elegant supper, laid in their own dining-room, in honor of the 18th anniversary of their wedding.

Mrs. Fletcher had quietly invited a number of guests, seated them in the parlor and while Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were sent in to entertain them, she, assisted by Mr. Bailey's sister, Mrs. Becaise of Charleston, S. C., who is visiting him, prepared the supper. After quite a merry time, enjoyed in both parlor and dining-room, the guests departed, leaving many congratulations to this happy couple, whose greatest pleasure is to make others happy.—Waldo News, 7th.

Among the prominent visitors to Gainesville is John T. Walker of Washington, D. C., a prominent contractor and builder of that city, and senior member of the firm of Walker & Son.

Mr. Walker's visit to Gainesville is one of especial pleasure to him, since at one time he was a "pioneer" citizen of the town. He was the contractor on the old East Florida Seminary barracks here in 1886, at which time he resided here with his family, and he also erected several residences throughout the city.

"I can hardly believe my eyes," remarked Mr. Walker Saturday, in talking with a number of friends. "In all my travels, I have never seen a town—I have no reference to mining and 'wild-cat' towns—grow like Gainesville has grown. I have not been here for twelve years, and I note a most remarkable improvement in every quarter, for which I feel very grateful, as Gainesville was my first home in the United States, when I brought my family from England. I am glad to see you prosper."

Mr. Walker spent the day Saturday mingling with his old friends and acquaintances, a few of whom are here yet. Among those are Dr. T. F. Thomas, Robt. McClellan, Geo. K. Broome, Henry Ramsey and a half-dozen others, and their meeting was a mutually agreeable one.

SPRING PARK CATTLE OFF TO THE FAIR

Consignment Left Saturday Night to be Exhibited to World.

STOCK MADE A FINE SIGHT

Cattle in Excellent Condition, and Will be Admired by Visitors to Fair. Many of Them Have Been Prize Winners at Various State Fairs.

Manager N. A. Callison of Spring Park Farm, one of the finest farms for the breeding of high-grade registered cattle in this section of the South, shipped Saturday night to Tampa the exhibit of the farm which he proposes to install at the Florida State Fair, live stock department, Monday. This consignment comprises twenty-five Herefords, the majority of which are Florida-bred, about a carload of Jerseys, and other stock, and as Manager Callison always keeps the animals in first-class trim, the show will no doubt attract a great deal of attention.

While many of those shipped Saturday are already prize-winners, there are some which have never been exhibited at a fair. They are of fine breed, however, and no fear is anticipated that they will not receive the proper recognition at the State Fair.

Among the famous registered stock in the lot are Ridicule and Dallas, two Hereford bulls who have to their credit prizes from many show rings of the various State fairs, including the Florida State Fair. There are many others which have prizes to their credit, but those mentioned are especially fine.

Manager Callison left Saturday night for Tampa, and will personally supervise his exhibit. Those familiar with cattle who have seen the stock of this farm feel confident that they will come off with many prizes to their credit.

Manager Callison had this exhibit at the meeting of the Farmers' Institute here, and it attracted a great deal of attention from those present, especially the stockmen.

Fatal Explosion in Mine.

Fort Hood, N. S., Feb. 8.—Ten men were imprisoned and are believed to be dead as the result of an explosion at the Fort Hood coal mines on Friday. Seven bodies have been taken out.

JUDGE HARGIS SLAIN

Noted Kentucky Jurist and Feudist Killed by His Son.

FIVE SHOTS WERE FIRED

Tragedy Occurred at the General Store of Judge Hargis, While Clerks Were Waiting on Customers—Son Was Placed Under Arrest.

Jackson, Ky., Feb. 8.—Former County Judge James Hargis, for many years member of the state democratic executive committee, accused of complicity in many murders and a prominent figure in the feuds which have disrupted Breathitt county for several years, was shot and killed in his general store here, about 2:30 Thursday afternoon by his son, Beach Hargis. The son fired five shots in rapid succession at his father, who fell dead while his clerks were waiting on customers.

Father and Son Quarreled.

The exact cause of the murder has not been learned, but it is supposed to have been the result of differences which have existed between father and son for some time. The two men are reported to have had a severe quarrel several nights ago, when the father, it is alleged, was compelled to resort to violence to restrain his son.

Young Hargis, it is said, had been drinking heavily of late. He came into the store late Thursday afternoon and was apparently under the influence of liquor. Judge Hargis, it is said, spoke to his son about his drinking and a quarrel resulted. Father and son stepped behind a counter in the store, when the son, after only a few minutes' conversation, drew a revolver and fired five shots. Four took effect, and the noted mountain character fell dead. The young lady stenographer and the customers in the store rushed for the doors and fled in fright.

Raving Like a Maniac.

Young Hargis was arrested by Town Marshals Govan Smith and Grover Blanton, and placed in jail. He was raving like a maniac and the officers were compelled to drag him to the jail.

Judge Hargis has been for years a prominent figure in Kentucky political and criminal circles. He has figured in the courts in the mountains for years on account of the murders of Dr. Cox, Attorney Marcum and Jim Cockrill.

Judge Hargis was the political leader of the democrats of the tenth district and was the "boss of Breathitt county."

SHOT BY HIS PATIENT.

Osteopathist Probably Fatally Wounded at Columbus, Ga.

Columbus, Ga., Feb. 8.—A little before 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon Ed Power shot and probably fatally wounded Dr. L. F. Meyers, an osteopath, in the latter's office. From the best information, Power went to Meyer's office, called the latter to the door and, after a few words, fired the shot, the ball entering the cheek just under the left eye, lodging in the base of the neck.

Power said he had to do it; that Meyers had taunted and worried him with telepathic power for two years past. After the shooting, Power was arrested and locked up. Meyers is well known and prominent. Power is a grocery clerk. Meyer's condition is quite critical.

LYNCHING OCCURS AT NEWBERRY

Jack Long Hanged There Early Thursday Morning.

SUSPICIONED OF KILLING SAPP

Had Been Arrested and Was Taken from Jail and Hanged to a Tree—He Was a Brother of the Man Young Sapp Killed Sometime Ago.

From Friday's Daily Sun:

The brutal and uncalled-for assassination of Elias Sapp, a well-known and prominent farmer of the Jonesville section who was shot down in cold blood on the outskirts of Newberry a few nights ago, has been avenged, as far as suspicion is concerned, and Jack Long, a white man of the Newberry district, has paid the penalty with his life.

The victim met his death at the hands of a mob numbering nearly two hundred people about 1 o'clock Thursday morning. He was hanged to a limb near the scene of the murder of a few nights before.

Ever since the murder of Elias Sapp, people of the Newberry and Jonesville districts have been quietly at work weaving a web. They had little to say regarding the tragedy, however, but kept steadily on in their investigation, which resulted in the arrest Wednesday of Jack Long, who was suspicioned of the murder.

Long was taken to Newberry and placed in the town jail, and as soon as the news spread the people of the town and surrounding country evidently became very indignant. The officers, apprehending trouble, placed three guards around the jail, but shortly after midnight a mob closed down upon them, taking them captives.

It was an orderly mob, but determined. While the guards were held captives at the mercy of those about them, men broke the lock and opened the door to the little prison-house. Trembling with fear the condemned victim crouched in a corner, as he realized that his time for death had come, and that it was useless to resist.

Quietly and orderly the "committee" lead Long from the jail, placed a rope about his neck, and, heading the procession, started on the death march. Those having the guards in charge placed them in the prison, secured the door, and fell in the rear.

This must have been a march of suspense for the man who was at the mercy of those about him, and who realized that the end was only a few moments off. He must have walked with steady nerve, however, as the half-mile point at which it had been planned to take his life was reached in reasonable time. The man's thoughts must have been only thoughts of misery, however, for it was a critical moment.

Arriving upon the scene, under a spreading oak, the rope was thrown over a convenient limb, when Long was swung into eternity—and the death of Elias Sapp was avenged, as far as that gathering was concerned.

Having been notified early in the morning, Coroner Henderson empanelled a jury and visited the scene, where they found the body suspended. The jury, after viewing the remains, returned a verdict that the deceased, Jack Long, came to his death at the hands of parties unknown.

At last reports everything was quieted down to the usual conditions at Newberry, and no further trouble is anticipated.

Jack Long was a brother of the man whom young Sapp assassinated some months ago, the murderer making his escape, and he was under suspicion of having killed the father of the man who had killed his (Long's) brother. Long was also a brother-in-law of Sapp.

WILL GO TO WASHINGTON.

County School Board Generously Makes a Good Appropriation.

A letter to the various county school superintendents of the State, from the office of State Superintendent Holloway, bears the information that no meeting of the county superintendents would be held this year, but that the superintendents' convention would be combined with the annual convention of the National Educational Association, which will be held in Washington for three days, beginning February 25.

State Superintendent Holloway further suggested that, inasmuch as this meeting was destined to prove of great value to the educational interests of the State, the various school boards of the State appropriate from the school funds the sum of $50 towards the expense of their superintendent in attending the convention.

This letter was read before the school board at its meeting Tuesday, and without hesitation the sum was unanimously appropriated to partially defray the expenses of Superintendent Kelley on this trip, which the board readily realized would prove a most beneficial appropriation.

Superintendent Kelley, who is already regarded as one of the most faithful and efficient advocates of education in the State, will no doubt be impressed with many new methods at this convention, and the schools of the county will get the benefit.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life.

[From The Chicago Tribune.]

"'Don't trifle with a cold,' is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold." Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by all druggists.

These stacks are 184 feet in height, respectively, and the painter attracted the attention of many pedestrians who happened to see him in passing.

THE SECOND DAY OF FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Sessions Were Well Attended by Those Most Deeply Interested.

MANY GOOD TALKS WERE MADE

The Farmers and Stockmen Learned a Great Deal Which Will Prove of Advantage to Them in Future—Governor Broward Could Not be Here.

From Friday's Daily Sun:

The first lecture before the farmers' meeting Thursday morning was by Dr. E. P. Guerrant of Ocala on "The Tick Fever and Its Eradication." Dr. Guerrant has spent four years in studying this and other disease problems to stock raisers in Florida.

While only twenty-five per cent of the cattle of the United States are in the South, fifty per cent of those that die of disease are lost in this section, the large percentage of loss here being due to tick fever. Dr. Guerrant gave a short history of the disease, the life cycle of the tick, how the fever is produced, symptoms and remedies. He told how susceptible fine bred stock brought from above the quarantine line are to the disease, and attributes many unsuccessful attempts to breed up herds by imported bulls to their becoming diseased and impotent from this cause. He advocated inoculating calves early, either directly by the ticks or by the hypodemic injection. Dr. Guerrant is getting out a publication on this important subject which will soon be ready for distribution.

S. H. Gaitskill of McIntosh, who is one of the most successful stock raisers in Florida, next addressed the meeting. He said it cannot be correctly said that there were any cattle raised in Florida, but that here, like Topsy, "they just growed." Some efforts have been made and are being made to improve the stock, but not in a thorough and systematic manner. He referred to N. A. Callison as one who is just now doing more toward raising good cattle than any other man whom he knows in the State. He believes there is a future for the growing of good cattle in the State. Those who know Mr. Gaitskill best believe there is no man in Florida who is working harder to bring the industry forward than he, both by raising fine cattle himself and by using his will and influence to get others to breed up, properly bred and care for their stock.

The most interesting address was that of Col. W. A. Harris of Kansas on "Cattle Raising." He has grown up in the cattle business, and told of the conditions in pioneer days in Missouri and Kansas, and believed that Florida was now passing through somewhat similar conditions, but as settlers become more numerous, competition sharper, and the advantages of raising good stock the Floridian will do what the Westerner has done—breed up his stock. Blood in cattle and brains in caring for them will make a great difference. He emphasized good blood and good care. Col. Harris believes in Shorthorns, and brought out clearly their strong points and general popularity. In answer to a question, he brought out the importance of developing the right kind of cattle for the purpose at which you are aiming. Beef type for beef, a dairy type for milk and butter. Crossing these is unsatisfactory.

Judge B. H. Palmer of Lake City being absent, Prof. F. G. Schell, secretary of the Cotton Growers' Association, in a brief address set forth the aims and purposes of the organization. He made some striking comparisons of the price of raw cotton and what it sold for as thread and lace, and said they believed by storing in warehouses, letting the spinners have it as needed, and producing a good staple the price can be advanced.

The barbecue given by the people of Gainesville was much enjoyed. The skill of Messrs. Shannon and Robinson was shown in the splendidly prepared meats. There was enough and some to spare, and everyone present enjoyed it thoroughly.

C. R. Thomas, secretary of the Hereford Association, gave an excellent and clean-cut lecture on the Hereford breed. The hardiness of the breeds and the ability to rustle for feed was about to be a leading characteristic. The legs are flesh all over. Another valuable quality of the Hereford breed is that the pure-bred bulls transmit their good qualities to the grades and always leave the characteristic color of the breed on the grade offspring.

Mr. Thomas showed in his splendid lecture that all the Florida breeders need to do is to make a start. It costs no more to raise good cattle than the scrub cattle.

W. R. Goodwin, of the Breeders' Gazette, Chicago, gave many helpful suggestions in his address. He told of the "Fundamental Economic Absurdity" which is now going on of shipping steers 1,000 miles from Colorado to Chicago, fattening them on cotton seed cake that has been shipped 1,000 miles from the South, and then shipped the beef produced 1,000 miles to New York to be sold. He thinks the day is coming when they will be raised, fattened and eaten in the same locality, and the great transportation charges saved. He said prime beef cannot be made from range stock. He, too, urged the importance of improving breeds, knows it can be done in Florida from what he has seen. He commended the work of the Experiment Station in showing how improvements may be made.

Dr. C. A. Cary, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes of Alabama, by charts showed the good points in a beef steer, where the desirable cuts were, the value of developing animals in proper directions. He brought out the idea that it is the muscle that counts in beef, told the effects of fattening, and how much bone and cheap meat there is in the scrub. He considers the cattle tick the great incubus to cattle raising in the South, and the only hope, its eradication.

The afternoon session closed with an exhibition of cattle from the Spring Park Farm and the Experiment Station farm Dr. Cary showing their good points to the audience.

Governor Broward failed to reach Gainesville in time to address the meeting on Thursday evening. In his absence Prof. A. W. Blair, chemist of the Experimental Station, gave an address on soils. He gave a brief sketch of the origin of soils, particularly Florida soil, and showed that owing to its peculiar mode of formation the soil here is poor in bases. Agencies are at work producing acids, and these not having sufficient basic material to neutralize them render the soil acid. Acid soils are not fertile. The neutralizing acidity of the soil is then an important problem, and conditions may be overcome by the use of lime in some of its forms. Wood ashes are good but expensive.

Owing to the inability of some of the speakers to reach Gainesville, it was decided to close the meeting Thursday night. The meeting was a great success, however, and is destined to prove of profit and advantage to all who attended it.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Florida Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Florida readers.

A. Oerting, seaman, of 419 L. street, Pensacola, Fla., tells how to do it. He says: "From my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills I can strongly recommend them to anyone in need of a good medicine for the kidneys. Kidney complaint and backache caused me suffering at intervals for years. The first or second attack I did not mind, but as time went by they grew worse and at times laid me up. I could hardly walk and it was a difficult matter to straighten up after stooping, while the kidney secretions were irregular and unnatural. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. From personal experience I know that this remedy can be depended upon to fulfill the representations made for it."

WANTS EARLY DATE.

President Fugate Thinks Farmers' Institute Would be Better Success.

J. E. Fugate of Alachua, county president of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, was in the city Friday.

Mr. Fugate, who is very enthusiastic along the lines of anything which will tend to benefit the farmers, came for the purpose of attending the last day's session of the Farmers' Institute, and was greatly disappointed to learn that the Institute closed Thursday evening.

"We all realize that this institute is a great thing for the farmers and stockmen," remarked Mr. Fugate, "as we who hear the lectures of distinguished men who are well posted are benefited. I do feel, however, that if the meeting was held in November or December of each year it would be much more successful, as at that season the farmers would have a better opportunity of attending. The farmers now are busy making their stands for the next crop, and the majority of them have not the time to attend, however badly they might want to do so."

Dairy Changes Hands.

The Pine Grove Dairy, which has been operated so successfully for the past nine years by Mrs. A. C. Andrews, has been purchased by the Gainesville Stock Farm Company, composed of W. D. Cromartie, D. S. Cromartie of North Carolina, and A. L. Vidal of this city. While the main feature of the business will be the breeding and raising of thoroughbred Jersey cattle, Berkshire hogs and fancy chickens, the new firm will make a specialty of dairying and dairy products, such as milk, cream and butter. They will move in a few days to their new pasture east of the city, where the necessary pasturage is abundant, and where they are building a commodious barn.

They now have between forty and fifty fine cows, and expect to add twenty more to their herd as soon as they can be secured.

The dairy and stock farm will be in charge of D. S. Cromartie, an experienced dairyman, butter and cheese maker, while Mr. Vidal will be in charge of the city end of the business.

SCROFULA AN INHERITANCE OF DISEASE AND SUFFERING

No truth is more forcibly manifested in physical life than the old saying "like begets like;" for just as the offspring of healthy ancestry are blessed with pure, rich blood, insuring health and strength, so the children of blood tainted parentage inherit a polluted circulation to burden their existence with disease and suffering. Swollen glands about the neck, brittle bones, weak eyes, pale, waxy complexions, running sores and ulcers and general poor health, are the usual ways in which Scrofula is manifested. In some cases the blood is so filled with the scrofulous germs and tubercular matter that from birth life is made miserable with suffering. Others who inherit the disease succeed in holding the trouble in check during young, vigorous life, but when the system has begun to weaken and lose its natural vitality, and especially after a spell of sickness, the ravages of the disease will commence, and in a great many cases terminate in Consumption. S. S. S. is the very best treatment for Scrofula. It renovates the entire circulation and drives out the scrofulous and tubercular deposits. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and it not only goes to the very bottom of the trouble and removes the cause and cures the disease, but it supplies the weak, anaemic blood with the healthful properties it is in need of. S. S. S. is made entirely of healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and is an absolutely safe remedy for young or old. Book on the blood and any medical advice about Scrofula given free of charge.

Pennsylvania is to have a "Bryan league." This is probably an offset to the Roosevelt league in Texas.

There seems no surer way of transforming a friend into a mere acquaintance than by lending him money.

Anthony Comstock's appearance in the Thaw case was just about as disappointing as most of his previous appearances.

Harry Thaw now can see "demencia Americana," "brainstorms," and "stuporous melancholia" at their busiest. And not a cigarette to be had!

It is hard to say whether the desire to keep Mr. Bryan out of the nomination comes more from his friends who do not want to see him defeated, or from his enemies who do.

The National Bank of North America has gone into the hands of a receiver, which would indicate that they are still treading on dangerous financial ground in New York. The boasted Republican prosperity seems to be skittish these days.

The temperance people of Duval county have presented their petition calling a "wet" or "dry" election. The county commissioners will pass upon the petition in a few days and if it is found to contain the required number of signatures the election will be called. The campaign will be a hot one.

Ex-Governor Jennings announces that he will be a candidate for National Committeeman from this State at the approaching primaries. It is not likely that Mr. Jennings will have a "walk over" for this position, as "there are others" who would like to have a hand in the distribution of the offices in case a Democrat should be elected President.

J. F. Futch of Santa Fe, who has been serving the people of his district as a member of the school board since the last election, has resigned, and Prof. F. H. Ellis, a well-known citizen and former school teacher of the county, has been recommended to the Governor as his successor. Prof. Ellis is a good man, perfectly competent, and would fill the position admirably.

Former Senator Chandler has advised the negroes to join in sending uninstructed delegations to the Republican National Convention that cannot be manipulated by the administration. When Chandler helped to count out Tilden by manipulating the darkeys of thirty-two years ago he showed himself an adept at the business, and the modern negroes may follow his advice, if there is "anything in it."

Joe Lee, the negro who holds the lucrative office of collector of internal revenue for Florida, is one of the ablest men of his race in the United States, and as a parliamentarian it is conceded that he has no superior in Florida. It is through Lee's influence with the negro race that the administration forces control delegates to the National Republican Convention, and in return therefor he holds the best office in the State within the gift of the President.

OVER OCEAN WAVES.

William E. Curtis, writing to The Chicago Record-Herald, says:

The most remarkable railroad in the world, which Henry M. Flagler is building on concrete arches through the shallow waters of the ocean along the garland of palm groves that cover the keys south of Florida, is now in operation for a distance of eighty-one miles to Knight's Key, and regular trains began running over it on the 15th inst. Through sleeping cars will be provided from New York and Chicago, and they ultimately will be carried across on a ferry from Key West to Havana, making the distance in six hours. The railway is more than half done, and, as the present terminus at Knight's Key has all the facilities for handling the traffic, Mr. Flagler decided to place the complete portion in operation and have it earning the expense of maintenance, at least, while the remainder of the track is finished to Key West. Practically 80 per cent of all the construction work is done and everything will be ready for through trains to Havana by the opening of the tourist season next winter.

Knight's Key, the present terminus of the Flagler system, is 109 miles south of Miami, forty-seven miles north of Key West and 115 miles north of Havana. The road between Miami and Knight's Key is built twenty-eight miles upon the main land of Florida and eighty-one miles across and between forty-two keys. For nearly one-half of the distance the railway track passes over the water on concrete arches, whose foundations rest upon the bottom of the sea.

The first twenty miles of the line runs through the Everglades and mangrove swamps, where thousands of tons of rock filling was hauled in from the ocean, and the grade was made by two large steam dredges that burrowed their own channels as they moved along, one on either side of the right of way, and lifted the earth from the excavations upon the roadbed to form an embankment that is now as solid as the earth itself. In this way two canals have been built—one on either side of the track through the Everglades, which are a protection to the track and will serve another useful purpose in assisting to drain the mangrove swamps of Southern Florida and make them habitable.

At the town of Homestead, twenty-eight miles south of Miami, the track leaves the continent of North America and starts upon its way over the ocean. Seventeen miles south of that point it reaches Key Largo, the largest of the keys, which is fifteen miles long, and from there jumps from key to key by means of massive masonry and embankments of cement and coral rock. In crossing the deeper channels several drawbridges have been provided to permit of the passage of vessels. The intervening water between the forty-two keys varies in width from a few hundred feet to two miles or more, and in depth from a few inches to thirty feet. The embankments are riprapped with rock to prevent washing, and are defended by piles and every other device that the engineers could invent to protect the railway from the attacks of the water, which is sometimes stirred up into great violence by the force of the wind. The track is thirty-one feet above high water, so that the passengers in the railway trains may sit in the windows of Pullman cars in serenety and have an opportunity of seeing how the Atlantic Ocean looks in a gale.

Some of the keys are very small, merely an acre or so of sand that has been piled up by the action of the water upon foundations of coral that have been constructed through the ages by these wonderful little insects that set us all a good example in patience and industry. On the Atlantic side they have hard beaches of clean white sand bordered with groves of stately cocoanut trees which grow wild everywhere in that latitude. On the western side the keys slope off into mangrove swamps and the interior of the larger islands is usually a dense mass of luxuriant tropical vegetation. These lands are admirably suited to fruit culture, and Mr. Flagler intends to colonize them in the near future. Except in a few scattered patches the soil has never been disturbed by cultivation. The few inhabitants have made their living in the fishing trade and in gathering sponges from the bottom of the sea for the market in Key West. Some of our best sponges come from that locality, and are cut from the coral rock with curved knives lashed to the ends of long poles. In early days the inhabitable keys were haunted by wreckers, who lured passing vessels upon the shoals by treacherous false lights and then looted them as they lay helpless. Horrible stories are told of the cruelty of the "conches," as these desperadoes were called. But their descendants are now engaged in more humane occupations. Wrecking as an industry has been abandoned ever since the line of six lighthouses was built along the shoals between Miami and Key West.

On some of the keys are mahogany groves, with trees of great value, and orchid hunters have found rare varieties of air plants and parasites among them. The soil and climate are especially adapted to pineapples, bananas and limes, and several pioneers have already started small plantations now that the railroad will furnish means of transportation to market. Hitherto the inhabitants of the keys have been entirely dependent upon their own sailboats, but their wants are few and both Key West and Miami are thriving cities.

Knight's Key, the present terminus of the East Coast railway system, has a safe and almost landlocked harbor made by the outlying reefs and keys, and a drop channel from the ocean permits vessels of twenty feet draught to come alongside a dock which Mr. Flagler has constructed 2,000 feet southwest of the key. The railway trains pass over a trestle and run alongside steamers which pick up their passengers and carry them on to Havana.

Experts who have studied the work of construction consider it one of the most remarkable pieces of engineering of modern times. It was begun in 1905, and has since been carried on without contracts under the direction of J. C. Meredith, an Iowa man, who was educated at the State Agricultural College at Ames and afterward took a course in civil engineering at Stevens Institute, Hoboken, N. J. He then went into river and harbor work under the army engineers, assisted to construct the great bridge over the Missouri at Kansas City, and was engaged for a time on harbor improvements and in building docks at Tampico, Mexico, until Mr. Flagler sent for him in 1904 and placed him in charge of the great work which he has now nearly accomplished. Nearly all of Mr. Meredith's assistants have also come from the State Agricultural College of Iowa, and they include C. B. Wilson, A. A. Rainey, J. H. Gailey and Ernest Cotton of Des Moines; C. M. Finley and John Finley of Sioux City; E. S. Coe of Washington, E. S. Ferguson of Burlington, G. E. Frost of Clear Lake, C. E. Curtis of Redfield, C. B. Wilson of Cherokee and others.

Another extraordinary feature of the enterprise is that it has been paid for by one man, and he hasn't had to borrow a dollar. Yet portions of the track cost $500,000 a mile. The East Coast railroad of Florida, of which it is an extension, is owned exclusively by Henry M. Flagler of the Standard Oil Company, who is counted as one of the six richest men in the world. He owns over 700 miles of railway, and will soon have 800 miles. He owns steamship lines and seven big hotels, and has about 15,000 men upon his pay-roll, including 4,000 laborers engaged in the construction of this remarkable road across the keys. Its completion will round out Mr. Flagler's plans for the development of the East Coast of Florida, in which he has spent twenty-three years of labor and more than $100,000,000. Mr. Rockefeller, his life partner in the commission business at Cleveland, and afterward in the Standard Oil Company, gives generously of his great wealth for educational purposes; Mr. Carnegie founds libraries, but Mr. Flagler, who has a practical and commercial mind, has devoted his ability and his means to the material development of a State which was almost as primitive as a wilderness when he first came to Florida.

He told me last spring that the idea of building a railroad along the coral islands to Key West and sending through sleeping cars from Chicago and New York to Havana came into his mind one afternoon in 1898, when he was reflecting upon the possible consequences of the Spanish-American war and the independence of Cuba. Knowing the extraordinary fertility of that island, and its possible capacity for the production of sugar, coffee and other tropical staples, he foresaw a future development that would furnish business for transportation lines far beyond anything that had yet been realized. He saw that the products of Cuba would be distributed throughout the entire area of the United States, and that the development of its natural resources would attract millions of capital, millions of laborers and hundreds of thousands of enterprising Americans.

This immigration would create an extensive market. Cuba already buys more than $100,000,000 worth of foreign merchandise every year and about half of it is shipped from the United States. The island is capable of supporting at least ten, and probably 12,000,000 of inhabitants, and Mr. Flagler believes that untimately it will haye several times the present population. It also occurred to him, in addition to the commercial advantages that would follow the material development of Cuba, a railway to Key West would be of supreme strategic importance to the Government of the United States, which has assumed the responsibility of preserving the peace and protecting the foreign population and property in that turbulent new republic.

These thoughts occupied Mr. Flagler's mind for several weeks. Then he sent for J. R. Parrott, the general manager of his railway system, and his right arm in all his Florida enterprises, and directed that surveys be made to determine whether a railway could be built across the keys. Engineers were employed with the same promptness that characterizes all of his undertakings, and, after two or three years they made a favorable report and traced the route that is now being followed along the coral formation south of the tip end of Florida.

When Mr. Flagler's plans became known there was a great deal of discussion in the daily newspapers and the professional journals concerning the feasibility of the project, and some eminent authorities advised him to undertake the construction of a railway line to Mars or to the moon or to any other old place that was beyond the reach of human endeavor. His faith was not disturbed in the slightest degree. He became even more determined. He sent for Mr. Parrott one day and said:

"Can that road be built?"

"It can," said Mr. Parrott.

"Then go ahead and build it."

Those were all the orders Mr. Parrott ever got. He has been assisted in carrying out the novel scheme by R. T. Goff, the general superintendent; J. P. Beckwith, the traffic manager; Third Vice-President J. E. Ingraham of the Flagler system, and many other able subordinates. By reason of their energy the track has not only been constructed in a manner that challenges the admiration of every engineer, but the work is now more than a year in advance of Mr. Parrott's predictions to Mr. Flagler.

It was so unusual and hazardous that no contractor would undertake the job. In several respects it was more difficult than the Panama canal. It was not only necessary to bring all the workmen from distant sources of supply, but they must be lodged and fed in enormous floating dormitories, which were anchored from place to place as the work progressed. Everything they ate and used must be brought to them over the water, and all of the construction material except the coral rock that was dredged out of the bottom of the sea must be transported a long distance.

The most important and novel concrete work ever attempted is found in the viaducts that span the deeper and more exposed waters of the ocean. The longest of them consists of 180 arches, of fifty and sixty foot centers, and 181 piers, making a total distance of 10,444.65 feet between abutments at at the springing line from Long Key to Grassy Key. The track is laid, and the cars will run thirty-one feet above high water, where the depth varies from thirteen to twenty feet, with a tide running four miles an hour. In the construction of this viaduct 286,000 barrels of cement were used, 177,000 cubic yards of crushed rock, 106,000 cubic yards of sand, 5,700 tons of steel reinforcing rods, $612,000 lineal feet of piling and 3,600,000 feet of dressed lumber for arch forms. Those figures will give an idea of the magnitude of the work and solidity of the railway bed.

As I have said, the trains commenced running on the 15th of January, connecting at Knight's Key with steamers for Havana, and Mr. Flagler hopes to publish the through schedule via Key West before the end of this year.

Office is the issue with the Florida Republicans, remarks The Tampa News. And it is also the issue with the Florida Democrats, Mr. News.

A WORD FOR THE BOY.

A boy at 15 years of age is at the most important period of his life. He is at the forks of the road. What he needs more than anything else is sympathy and advice. It would be strange indeed if boys did not build "Castles in Spain" at that age, and what they need is the practical suggestion of someone, who is himself a success in life, to guide them. Most people think that boys do not need either sympathy or advice. It is a great mistake. They need it as much as girls. We have never known one of them to refuse to take advice if it were tendered to them at the right time, in the right spirit. The mistake that most people make in talking to boys is that they lecture them in season and out, persecute them with all sorts of foolish suggestions, and expect more from them than they would from a man. If I had any word of counsel to give it would be: Don't lecture a boy. Don't nag him. Don't persecute him if he has done wrong. Don't laugh at him if he has failed, perhaps in some over-ambitious boyish scheme. Don't crush him. Don't break his spirit. Give the boy a chance. Show him his mistake and then tell him what he should do. When you crush a boy's spirit you have ruined the boy. In all probability he will blossom into a first-class dude.—Fraternal Record.

Labor lost a long-drawn-out fight in a decision of the supreme court last week. It was a case that dates clear back to the Chicago railroad troubles of 1898. The case was that of William Adair, master mechanic of the Louisville and Nashville road, who had threatened to discharge an engineer because he belonged to a labor union. This was in contravention of the Erdman act that prohibited railroads engaged in interstate commerce from discharging employees because they belonged to labor unions. The supreme court holds that the law is unconstitutional. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion and said that so long as there was no contract and no time limit set to the employment of the man, Congress had no more right to pass a law preventing his discharge than it had to pass a law preventing him from quitting his employment. It was a rule the court said that would have to work both ways. If there is a contract between the employer and the employee, it must be respected by both of them. But when there is no contract, there is nothing to prevent the employee from quitting if he wishes, and similarly there is nothing to prevent the railroad from discharging him without giving any reason for the act. Justice Harlan said if the right of Congress to pass such a law were allowed there would be nothing to prevent Congress passing a law making it a crime for the railroads to employ any but union men, and this would be absurd on the face of it. Justice McKenna and Justice Holmes dissented from this opinion, Justice McKenna saying that the decision of the court was along very narrow lines. Justice Holmes said that the right to make contracts had been stretched to the limit by the decision and intimated that Congress had the right to legislate so as to encourage the formation of labor unions.

The recent assassination of Elias Sapp at Newberry, followed by the lynching of Jack Long, who had been arrested on suspicion of having committed the foul murder, and the murder at High Springs on Friday, are all deeply regretted by the law-abiding people of Alachua county. The Sun is not advised of the nature of the evidence against Long, but he should have been given a trial in the courts of the land, and if found guilty executed in a legal manner. One legal hanging in the county will do more to put a stop to murder than a dozen lynchings, for the latter is a crime, and crime begets crime.

A FATAL TRAGEDY AT HIGH SPRINGS

J. T. Chester Shot and Killed by Step-Brother, W. H. Temple.

TOWN WAS GREATLY EXCITED

Both Men Well Known and Prominent. Tragedy Occurred at Depot Restaurant, of Which the Murdered Man Was the Proprietor.

From Saturday's Daily Sun:

High Springs was the scene of a shocking tragedy about 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, as the result of which J. T. Chester lost his life, and W. H. Temple, his step-brother who did the deadly work, is now behind the bars of the Alachua county jail upon a charge of murder.

The tragedy, occurring in the middle of the forenoon, and at the door of the restaurant in the Atlantic Coast Line depot at that place, created a great deal of excitement, and almost before the smoke had cleared away from the discharge of the revolver, a large crowd congregated. Excitement ran high for a time, as the prostrate body of the dead man lay stretched upon the floor in a pool of his own life blood, and the slayer stood bleeding from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound and knife wounds, alleged to have been inflicted by the dead man.

Mr. Chester was the proprietor of the railroad restaurant at High Springs. Rumors are conflicting, but it was reported here that Chester and Temple formerly owned the business as partners. Recently Chester purchased the interest of Temple, and it is understood that the altercation was brought about in an effort to effect a settlement of financial differences between the men. Those coming from High Springs reported that Temple, on Monday afternoon, went to Chester's place of business for the purpose of making a settlement. Evidently this was unsatisfactory, as Temple returned Tuesday morning, when the trouble occurred.

From the best information obtainable from the scene, it appears that Temple suddenly clutched Chester, drew his pistol, and began firing, the contents of all five chambers of the gun being discharged. One of the bullets missed its mark and pierced Temple's hand, causing it to bleed freely. He was also bleeding from the knife wounds alleged to have been made by Chester, whom it is claimed approached Temple with an open knife.

Immediately after the tragedy Sheriff Fennell was notified, and left on the 11:30 train, returning with his prisoner in the afternoon. He took the prisoner immediately to jail, and few had an opportunity of seeing him.

Temple has by no means an ugly countenance. He is a young man of possibly twenty-eight, low and stout, and appears quite muscular. He was neatly dressed, and wore a derby hat. As he stepped from the train it was noticed that the left shirt sleeve was partially rolled, partly disclosing the ugly wounds and a bloody sleeve.

Both men are said to be popular in High Springs, and the tragedy is greatly deplored by the people of that town.

High Springs Report.

High Springs, Feb. 7.—A shocking tragedy occurred here this morning at the A. C. L. passenger depot. James T. Chester, proprietor of the restaurant at the depot, was killed by his step-brother, W. H. Temple.

The difficulty arose over the fact that Mr. Temple was arranging to start a restaurant in opposition to Mr. Chester.

It is understood that Mr. Chester drew a knife, as Mr. Temple is slightly cut. Both men were highly respected citizens, and the occurence is deeply deplored by everyone.

From Sunday's Daily Sun:

"I cannot understand how the report got out that W. H. Temple, the man who killed J. T. Chester at High Springs Friday, is suffering from knife wounds, for there is no sign of a knife wound about him," remarked Sheriff L. W. Fennell Saturday, as he read the report in The Sun to the effect that Temple was suffering from knife wounds.

The Sun knows nothing about the case except what could be learned through verbal sources, all of whom stated that it was alleged the dead man came after Temple with a knife.

"You may quote me as saying that there is absolutely no sign of a knife-wound on Temple's person. The only wound is a bullet through his left hand, supposedly self-inflicted, as the dead man when searched had neither a knife or a pistol about him or on his person."

The date of preliminary hearing of Temple has not yet been set. It has not been decided whether the hearing would take place before Justice Bexley at High Springs or before Judge Mason in this city, but, inasmuch as Temple is now in jail in Gainesville, the chances are that it will be held here.

Temple rests as easily in jail as is possible under the circumstances. Those about the jail state that he is taking matters coolly, and that he refuses to discuss the unfortunate affair in any form.

We often wonder just what the people do think who read our ads. About these Bracelets, however, we want to say that you would understand why we talk of them so much if you could see the interest that is daily shown by those with and without this very faddish piece of jewelry—the number we are selling, etc. Have you seen our line? THE NEWS FROM SANTA FE.

Heavy Movement of Cotton—Other Notes of General Interest.

Santa Fe, Feb. 7.—The death of Mrs. Nancy Willis, which occurred at the home of S. T. Burnett, near LaCrosse, on the morning of the 5th, removes one of the oldest persons in this community and probably the oldest in the county. Mrs. Willis did not know her age, but her relatives here claim her to be 100 years old, or near that. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. L. Varnadoe, who is nearly seventy-five years old, and several grand and great-grandchildren. She died at the home of her grand-daughter. Grandma Willis' husband died some twenty years ago. He was said to be 114 years old when he died.

The farmers let loose eight solid cars loaded with cotton from this place this week. There will be about seven hundred bales of the 1907 crop shipped from this station, when it is all shipped. Some are holding yet, as the price is very unsatisfactory. Santa Fe is entitled to be called one of the cotton centers.

The time has passed when odor of backbone and spareribs was borne on every passing breeze, and mankind at large was luxurating in the glorious of a copious sausage shower.

The many friends of Prof. F. H. Ellis are proud to know that he has been recommended to the Governor for appointment as member of the school board to serve the vacancy of J. F. Futch, resigned. No better appointment could be made. Prof. Ellis is one of Alachua county's most experienced teachers, and a young man of pleasing address, and is very popular with those that knew him. His appointment will be greeted with universal favor here.

The farmers are going with renewed energy in the preparation of their lands for a large crop for 1908. Labor is more plentiful than last year, caused we suppose by the silver lining of the dark financial clouds that have been hanging over the country.

THE HUMAN STOMACH.

Many and Grievous Abuses to Which it is Subjected.

Many and grievous are the abuses to which the average person subjects the stomach. The wonder is, not that so many, but that so few stomachs smarting under provocation do not strike.

When the long-abused stomach does turn, life is made miserable by sick headaches, nervousness, distress after eating, sleeplessness, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, general debility and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

Then the weakened muscles of the stomach need strengthening with Mi-o-na. The use of this simple remedy for a few days strengthens the whole digestive system so that it can take care of all the food that is eaten without pain or distress. J. W. McCollum & C. sell Mi-o-na in 50-cent boxes under a guarantee to refund the money unless it does all that is claimed for it.

ARBOR DAY EXERCISES.

A Large Audience Present at the Public School Building Friday.

Friday, Arbor Day, was duly observed by the Gainesville Graded and High School, and a large crowd assembled in the auditorium to hear the excellent program which had been arranged.

The exercises were very cleverly executed, and in all this was one of the most impressive ceremonies transpiring in the auditorium for some time.

The following program was rendered:

Song, "Arbor Day"—High School Chorus.

Recitation, "The Tree"—Julia Patton.

Recitation, "An Arbor Day Tree"—Sophia Burkhim.

Reading of State Superintendent's letter—Sam Mixson.

Recitation, "The Uses of Trees"—Mary McKinstry.

Recitation, "Plant a Tree"—Douglass Pedrick, Leon Rivers, Ruth McDonald, Josie Johnson, Edith Naftzger.

Short Papers on Histories—Earl Kelley, "The Apple Tree of Appomattox; Lucia Patton, "The Charter Oak at Hartford;" Katie White, "The Cedars of Mount Lebanon;" Thos. F. McBeath, Jr., "The Big Trees of California."

Recitation, "The Pine Tree"—Mozelle Burkhim, Mabel Lamons.

Song, "An Arbor Day Tree"—High School Chorus.

A DISAPPOINTED CROWD.

Many Came from Country to Hear Speech Governor Didn't Make.

It was a disappointed gathering at the Tabernacle Thursday night, when it was announced that Governor N. B. Broward, who was down on the program of the Farmers' Institute for an address on that occasion, had not arrived.

Wednesday, Mayor W. R. Thomas received a telegram from the Governor to the effect that he could be depended upon, and arrangements were made accordingly. But Thursday afternoon late the mayor received another message expressing regrets at the Governor's inability to be present on account of illness.

Quite a number came from the country to hear this address, and were sorely disappointed. However, the evening was passed in an interesting and profitable manner, an instructive address on soils having been delivered by Prof. A. W. Blair of the Experimental Station.

REMAINS TO QUINCY.

Body of J. T. Chester, Killed at High Springs, to be Buried There.

From Sunday's Daily Sun:

The remains of J. T. Chester, the young white man killed at High Springs by W. H. Temple, were taken to Quincy Saturday morning, where the interment will be held today in the family burying-ground.

This funeral will be a particularly sad one, owing to the prominence of the deceased, and the manner in which he met his death.

The remains were accompanied by the grief-stricken wife and two children, who survive.

A Delightful Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mosty, East Court street, was the scene of a happy gathering Friday evening, the occasion being a party given in honor of their cousin, Miss Nettie Burgess, of Charleston, who is their guest.

About twenty-five people were present, and the evening was passed in a most enjoyable manner, luchtionally refreshments being served.

THE NEWS FROM NATIONAL CAPITAL

Some Political Prognostications About Presidential Candidates.

THE FIELD AS AGAINST TAFT

The Favorite Sons Will Endeavor to Combine Against the Secretary of War and Prevent His Nomination. Mr. Bryan Monopolizes News.

Special Correspondence The Daily Sun.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Congress has virtually done nothing but talk for the past week, which means that the leaders intend to standpat, pass the appropriation bills and go home to look after their fences. It may be of interest, therefore, to investigate what is the present condition and the probable outcome of the Republican factional fight. As far as the nomination for President is concerned, it is Taft against the field, with Taft apparently well in the lead at this writing. The favorite sons control their own States with the following delegates:

Hughes—New York	78
Cannon—Illinois	54
Fairbanks—Indiana	30
LaFollette—Wisconsin	26
Total	286

As there are 992 delegates to the Republican National Convention, it will require 497 for a majority and the anti-Taft managers will need 211 more votes than those of the States above enumerated to nominate some other candidate.

Some of these favorite sons will get all or some of the delegates from other States, but there is nothing certain about it yet. United States Senator Murray Crane of Massachusetts is the manager of the Knox boom and is credited with having induced Governor Hughes to announce himself as a candidate, so as to prevent President Roosevelt from controlling the delegates from New York. Whether Senator Crane can control the delegates from his own State is a problem not yet settled. Senator Lodge is master of the Massachusetts Republican machine, and although Senator Crane is more popular with the voters the machine is perhaps too powerful to be defeated. So Massachusetts is a doubtful quantity just yet.

Since the Churchill recommendation for a Federal office in New Hampshire was nominated by President Roosevelt and was turned down by the Senate at the instance of the Senators from New Hampshire there is a fight for delegates, and whether the Senators will control or the Churchill faction cannot be stated at this writing. If the Senators win the delegates will support Knox or Hughes, probably the latter for the first few ballots.

There is a factional fight raging in Iowa between the Allison and Cummins factions, with a complication of former Secretary Shaw attempting to be a favorite son, but his late attempt to break into the ranks of the frenzied financiers of Wall Street will probably act as a stopper on his political ambition.

West Virginia will be likely to send delegates controlled by Senator Elkins and opposed to Taft, who will be for Knox when the balloting becomes really interesting.

The balance of power between the Roosevelt-Taft and the Knox-Hughes factions will be in the hands of the delegates from the Southern States. If they split up their votes Taft may be defeated, but if the administration controls the great majority of them the opposition will win. The situation in the South differs from former occasions, for the Roosevelt plan of virtually eliminating the negro vote and turning over all the patronage to a few selected lily-whites has angered the darkey leaders. That feeling has been made more bitter by the Brownsville affair, which will also have its effect in some Northern States where the negroes are numerous. This peculiar state of affairs may lead to some contesting delegations from Southern States and the fight be carried into the convention.

There is a chance for unparalleled corruption to play its part in the Republican Convention, for delegates from the Southern States have usually been in politics that were there was [illegible] with the Federal office [illegible] as an open [illegible] week has been somewhat monopolized by Mr. Bryan, who came to the Capital last Saturday to attend the Gridiron banquet, and has remained here until the middle of the past week consulting with his friends about how to overcome the obstacles that are in his path to attain his ambition. The Press Bureau maintained here in the interest of Mr. Bryan's candidacy was almost in a dissoluble condition when the poll of the standing of the Democratic members of Congress was published. They could not believe that over one-third of the Congressmen were willing to go on record as being opposed to Mr. Bryan's nomination. It was therefore decided to have those friendly to Mr. Bryan interview the members and see if such a large defection really existed. The result was about the same, except that a larger number refused to go on record, and the poll showed that only a majority of the Democratic Congressmen representing the Western and Southwestern States were favorable to the nomination of Mr. Bryan. This opposition is emphasized by the fact that a large majority of the Democratic members of Congress, although not willing to be quoted, will privately assure any Democratic friend who talks with them that although they do not wish to oppose Mr. Bryan, yet they much fear he cannot be elected, and would prefer to see someone nominated who would better unite the party in New York and other doubtful States. It is conceded by Hon. Daniel Campau of Detroit, who has been selected by Mr. Bryan to manage his campaign, if he is nominated, that it is absolutely necessary for the Democrats to carry the State of New York to insure success. He realizes the fact that Mr. Bryan has been defeated in that State by a very large majority at each former election, and therefore proposes that Mr. Chanler, the present Lieutenant-Governor, shall be nominated for Vice-President because he has shown his ability to carry the State. But much wiser politicians than Mr. Campau has proved himself to be—for under his political management the Democratic party of his own State, Michigan, has become so attenuated that there is apparently no organization of the party there, for there is no Democratic member of the State Senate, and but five members of the Lower House of the State Legislature, and no Democratic member of the present Congress—declare that even the undoubted strength of Mr. Chanler would not be able to pull Mr. Bryan through in New York. Without New York it is almost impossible to figure out a Democratic victory.

KNOCK-DOWNS AND DRAG-OUTS

Marked the Republican State Convention At St. Augustine,

AND CONTESTING DELEGATIONS

Is the Result—The Convention Was Hopelessly Split Into Administration and Anti-Administration Factions, Both Sides Electing Delegates.

St. Augustine, Feb. 7.—Florida Republicans stood conspicuously in the lime-light yesterday as being the first to hold their convention to select delegates to the National convention, and it is said here that the strenuous and exciting scenes enacted yesterday are merely a forerunner of similar scenes in other Southern States, caused by the desperate effort being made by the anti-Roosevelt Republicans for control in the National convention.

The convention held yesterday will go down in history as one of the most remarkable ever held by any political party. It was really two conventions held at the same time in the same hall, the progress of business being frequently interrupted by sensational knock-down and drag-out fights.

The officeholders' faction was called to order by the chairman of the State committee and they proclaimed themselves as the regulars, and succeeded in carrying out their pre-arranged program, and strong resolutions were adopted emphatically indorsing William H. Taft for the Presidency.

Other Side's Instructed.

On the other side of the hall the contesting convention took the conservative action and chose delegates absolutely untrammeled by any instructions, they being given positive assurance by Joseph N. Stripling, who led the movement, that despite the fact that they were branded as bolters by the other convention, the delegates they named would be seated in the National convention.

The officeholders' convention adopted resolutions approving the policies of the Roosevelt administration and the conservative manner in which he has carried them out, and instructed the delegates to the National convention to support the President's policies and the candidate who is in sympathy with, and who will carry out those policies, and then proceed to name William H. Taft as such a candidate.

The anti-Taft convention adopted resolutions condemning in strong terms the attempts to influence and control, by use of Federal patronage through Governmental officeholders, the selection of delegates to the National convention in the interest of any Presidential candidate.

The Delegates Chosen.

The officeholders' convention elected as delegates to the convention J. N. Coombs, member of the National committee from Florida; Joseph E. Lee, colored, collector of internal revenue; Henry S. Chubb, receiver of the United States land office at Gainesville, and M. B. MacFarlane, collector of customs at Tampa. Four alternates were also elected.

The anti-Taft convention elected as delegates to the National convention Joseph N. Stripling, former United States attorney; J. De V. Hazzard, J. H. Dickerson and R. R. Robinson, the two latter being colored. They also elected four alternates.

The Congressional district conventions of the First and Second districts of Florida were held by each faction immediately after the adjournment of the State convention, and each of these conventions elected two delegates to the National convention and adopted the same resolutions as the State conventions of their respective factions had already adopted.

Never has such a sight been witnessed as was presented in the convention hall. The city marshal and a dozen policemen were on duty and were frequently called upon to eject unruly delegates.

HON. P. M. TRAMMELL
For ATTORNEY-GENERAL

To the Citizens of Florida:

I wish respectfully to announce that I will be a candidate before the coming Democratic primary, for nomination to the office of Attorney-General of the State of Florida. In announcing for this important office, I wish to assure the citizens of our State that if it is my honor to serve them in this office, I shall discharge the duties appertaining thereto in accordance with the law, with impartiality, and without fear or favor.

Acknowledging a life-time debt of gratitude, I will say that through the kindness of the citizens of Polk county, I have served three sessions in the Florida Legislature. In my humble way I have constantly striven to foster and conserve the interest of all Florida. With high regard for all those entertaining contrary views, I have always exercised my vote and influence, as I conceived it, for the best interest of the whole people.

I lay no claim to superior and infallible judgment, and frankly admit that I have doubtless made some mistakes. However, they have been honestly made, and I believe despite my occasional blunders my record as a whole will be looked upon by the fair and unprejudiced as the record of one whose heart beats in sympathy with the interest of the great masses of our beloved State. My candidacy, supported by marked encouragement of kind friends emanated from my own aspirations, and not as the project of any faction or political contingency in our State. Friends both political and personal are cherished by me and I esteem their advice and counsel, yet neither partisanism nor friendship has controlled nor shall control me in performance of public trust. My only master shall be duty to the Commonwealth and the advancement of the public good. I believe the government that shall be most prosperous and the people that shall be happiest and most content are found in the land where equal justice is done unto every man and to every interest, and as far as within my power I would make ours an ideal government. As Attorney-General I would hew to the line and would guard zealously against any infringements, either by omission or commission, of the rights of the people as given to them by our constitution and statutory law. My destiny in this undertaking is subject to the will of the man who casts the ballot, and to him I appeal for support that I may achieve success, assuring each and every voter that I shall be grateful for his influence.

Respectfully,
PARK M. TRAMMELL.

M. W. Ulmer of Largo had an acre in cane from which he made 1,188 gallons of thick cane syrup, saving 700 stalks for seed. Mr. Ulmer stated that it cost him 15 cents a gallon to produce the syrup, and figures that the acre netted him over $500.

It is reported that owing to the lack of work in the factories in Key West, there is much destitution among the poorer classes. The matter has been referred to the city council and county commissioners with the request that they render immediate aid.

T. A. Strickland of Bonifay, a well-known planter, was shot and perhaps mortally wounded Wednesday night as he was seated by a window reading. His twelve year-old son, Wallace, has been arrested and admitted that he shot his father. He further says that he fired the shot at the instance and persuasion of his mother, who had promised that if he would kill his father she would give him a horse and buggy. Wednesday night he crept from the house at an early hour and, with his father's gun, waited outside in the darkness until the father took a seat by a window, his usual seat at night, and began reading a paper. Then he fired both barrels of a shotgun. A portion of the charge took effect in the man's head.
